Business Flows and Market Participants from an Investment Managers perspective

Corporate actions remain one of the most risky areas within financial services

Asset Servicing players

Data

Providers

Agent

Custodians

From issuer to the investor, data is keyed and rekeyed manually, causing errors and risk

With the financial crisis, an increased focus on operational risks

Interpretation Risk

Issuer messages are written in "free text, e.g. news release and regulatory filing, that must be translated and rekeyed by the financial services industry

Timing Risk

Need for manual intervention results in delays in communicating information to the end investor

Accuracy Risk

Multiple players disseminating the same information results in uncertainty as to the accuracy of the result. Translation and manual rekeying increases the potential for errors

Significant Costs

The lack of straight-through processing throughout the corporate actions chain results in additional cost and liability being absorbed by the financial services industry

However, the planets have aligned to finally sort out the problem ... at least for the United States

The industry has quantified the expected gains in operational efficiency - the benefits are tangible

BNY Mellon Goes Live with DTCC Corporate Actions Messaging Solution over the SWIFT Network

Solution improves timeliness and accuracy of corporate actions announcements through automation

Published on 16 Aug 2012

NEW YORK, August 16, 2012 — The Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation (DTCC) and SWIFT, the financial messaging provider for more than 10,000 financial institutions and corporations in 210 countries, today announced BNY Mellon is the latest financial institution to go live on DTCC's new corporate actions messaging solution over the SWIFT network. The solution, which the DTCC launched late last year for corporate actions announcements, is part of a broader initiative by DTCC to reengineer its corporate actions platform and adopt the global ISO 20022 standard as part of the core service offering to its participants.

BNY Mellon was an active member of the solution's pilot program, providing essential feedback that helped create global standards throughout both the testing and validation process. Based on the successful pilot, BNY Mellon is implementing mandatory corporate event announcements and will transition the remaining event types during future phases. The move from using proprietary files to implementing ISO 20022 real-time standard messaging eradicates the need for manual tasks, reducing risk and increasing accuracy of corporate action information.

"By going live with corporate actions and the ISO 20022 messaging standard, we are enhancing our client experience, reducing risk, and enabling greater straight through processing," said Calvin Holmquist, executive vice president and head of Global Securities Operations at BNY Mellon.
